Bp. Donald Sanborn Insanely Fearmongers About Biden Presidency

Tony Odarg November 11, 2020

I will admit that this entire 2020 election has been shady and should be redone. The fact that it took a week to count the votes is absurd. However, you can't just make stuff up because your guy lost. Bishop Sanborn does just that:

> …on election night, a number of states stopped counting. They were Wisconsin, Michigan, Pennsylvania, North Carolina, and Georgia. It was as if word went out from some unknown source that they should stop. All of these states, with the exception of Georgia, are ruled by leftist governors. Consequently the persons supervising the elections are also leftists. I never in my whole life saw an election night in which the counting stopped, and that even when counting was done manually or mechanically.

Florida was a Republican state in 2000 and decided to purge Democratic voters to give Bush a win. I assume the Bishop was alive twenty years ago. The idea that leftists run things therefore they are going to do shady stuff is not wrong. However, is it possible Republicans in Republican states can do the same? This is just not an argument. Politics is all about power; deal with it.

> The leftists had been pushing for mail-in voting for months. Even President Carter…said that mail-in votes are the most susceptible to fraud. The supposed reason for the mail-in voting was because of Covid-19. While the leftists have no objections to mass gatherings of looters, burners, and murderers without masks, they had grave scruples that people at polling stations, although wearing masks and observing social distancing, might become infected with the Communist Chinese disease. Then there is the fact that most, if not all, of the mail-in ballots were for Biden. Amazing! Then there is the fact that many thousands of ballots bore Biden's name only, with no other votes on them. Just a coincidence.

The bishop no doubt is familiar with the concept of a third truth, which is an answer to the fallacious false dichotomy. Conservatives say the virus is a hoax, mail in voting is fraudulent and rioting/looting is proof of the former; liberals say the virus is deadly, mail in voting is fine and rioting/looting magically is not an issue for spreading covid. Is there not a possible third position, namely, that the virus is deadly, mail in voting is not fraudulent and rioting/looting must be opposed not just morally but because the virus will spread thereby? The bishop then says leftists have been pushing mail in voting and is surprised that most of them are for Biden. Also, it is not uncommon for people to vote for just the president and leave other slots blank.

> Then there was the refusal to permit legally constituted Republican poll watchers to observe the counting. If you are doing nothing wrong, then why would you care about who is looking? Conversely, if you have something to hide, you naturally put up barriers. There was actually the case in one city of vote counters covering up windows lest anyone see what they were doing. Then there were the many stories before the election of mail-in ballots being lost or thrown into the trash. Then there were the stories of dead people voting. Then there were the computer glitches in the same systems…

I have already debunked these examples with the information available, so I will link it all below.

> However, the evidence may be difficult to obtain, given that the leftists resist transparency, and the states in question, except Georgia, are operated by leftists. For this reason, I think that the President has an uphill battle in claiming his victory, which I do believe is already his.

Bishop admits he has no evidence, so what are you basing this on? You've drawn the conclusion prior to any evidence being presented. Evidence is difficult to obtain? Maybe because there isn't any! The bishop then lists all the horrors that will supposedly happen if Biden becomes President. While some will undoubtedly happen, it is dubious whether it would be due to a Biden Presidency or to a general direction of the culture.

> These are the horrors that we have to look forward to, if Biden should become our president:
>
> • The fairly swift demise of Biden, owing to the progress of his dementia, giving way to Kamala Harris, a radical socialist who was unable even to survive in the Democrat primary race, the first to drop out.

Trump is also demented, but I'll leave that aside. Kamala is a tough on crime cop who has refused to endorse Bernie Sanders' economic policies, such as a Green New Deal or Medicare for All. Calling her a socialist is a bit much.

> • The promotion of all of the interests and goals of the killers of innocent babies, otherwise known as abortionists.

Sure, but that's what's been happened anyway. Don't forget, the high court is majority conservative and abortion has barely been brought up in this campaign, presumably because Trump has done nothing about it.

> • The promotion of the interests and goals of those addicted to unnatural vice. There could even be a move to take away tax exemption from churches which refuse to do homosexual marriages.

I actually support removing tax exempt status from all religious organizations, due to their insane leftism, wokeness and anti-White ideals. That said, homosexuality has been normalized in conservative circles under Trump. There is an entire section of the Republican outreach to the LGBTQ community.

> • The weakening of our military, which took place under the Obama administration, leaving us wide open to aggression from China and perhaps an allied Russia.

The warmongering of supposed Christians never ceases to amaze me. We spend more on the military than the next dozen countries combined, which is why we don't have money for actual socialism. Apparently, military socialism is not problematic to the bishop. China and Russia are not going to attack us, although I'd prefer to be ruled by Chinese than by Jews: they don't blend in as well.

> • An open door policy to Communist China, a nation which closely resembles Nazi Germany, involving the passing of our military and other technical secrets, and the draining of American industry from this country, leaving us in a vulnerable condition strategically, and wrecking the U.S. economy.

China does steal our military and tech secrets, but that is our fault more than theirs. How exactly is the policy of the US towards China under Biden going to be different than under Trump? In any event, this is the insane ravings of a boomer who is out of touch. Notice he compares a capitalist country, like China, with some authoritarian overtones no doubt with Nazi Germany, a country that opposed the spread of communism. Also, I presume he just forgot to mention that American banks funded the Soviet Union, our allies during WW2.

> • The restriction or elimination of home-schooling and of choice of schools. • The defunding of police departments, replacing them with psychologists who will supposedly talk people out of shooting or raping someone. • The denigration of police as fascists and as a menace to society.

Biden has explicitly promised to increase funding for police. He picked a cop to be his running mate for crying out loud. I see zero evidence that home schooling is going to be outlawed or curtailed. If anything, it will become more common place due to Covid and Biden taking more stringent measures than Trump to lockdown the country. Eliminating school choice would actually be a good thing, so that black kids are not going to White schools beating up the White kids.

> • The coming to power of such persons as the climate maniac Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez, with her positively insane Green New Deal, which proposes to take away our automobiles, our airplanes and our hamburgers, and which will cost untold trillions of dollars. • The promotion of the plan to take us off fossil fuels, so that we can become a place like third-world California, which has blackouts because of insufficient amounts of electricity generated by their bird-killing windmills.

Biden explicitly said when asked by Chris Wallace that he does not support the Green New Deal. Not like that's a good thing, mind you. And no, it would not eliminate hamburgers and airplanes, it would create jobs. I can only imagine the bishop would be one of those people, had he lived during the invention of the automobile, decrying the lose of horse of buggy. The lack of imagination and invention is astounding.

> • The promotion to power of the arm-flailing Beto O'Rourke, who is an anti-gun fanatic, and who has pledged to take away our guns.

You're mad that the police will be eliminated, but then want more police, under Biden who is going to take your guns, the very people who would come to your house and take your guns. I'm confused.

> • Socialized medicine, so that we can enjoy what other socialized countries have: waiting many weeks or months for operations. (I remember, when I was living in Michigan, Canadians would come to the United States, which was just across the river, in order to avoid the horrors of their socialized medicine).

The idea that Canadians come to the United States for healthcare is a Fox News myth. They come here to work because we pay our doctors an obscene amount of money. We already wait many weeks for operations under our current system. We also go bankrupt even with the insurance we have and can't get operations due to the cost anyway.

> • Draconian lockdowns because of Covid-19, thereby destroying small businesses, and ruining the remarkable recovery from the lockdown that we have seen recently. (Biden said he wants to get people to wear masks in their homes).

About half of small businesses have gone under, 8 million people are on the poverty line and tens of millions have permanently lost their job. The only remarkable recovery is in the bishop's collection basket.

> • The probable decline of the stock market, thereby diminishing the retirement plans of millions of people. • Higher taxes. • Higher gasoline prices. • The destruction of the oil and gas business as well as that of coal mining.

Biden has promised not to ban fracking. The fetish with coal among conservatives is quite bizarre. The fluctuation of the stock market is not solely the president's fault; it's largely a result of the Fed's interest rates, general economic euphoria and the profits of billionaires.

> • The reign of an unfettered Big Tech, which, together with the media, will indoctrinate the population with leftist ideas, and suppress anything contrary.

This already happened and under Trump no less. None of this happened under Obama.

> • The appointment of leftist judges to the Supreme Court and to other lower courts. • The rise of the RINO's, that is, feckless, spineless, and liberal Republicans who belong on the other side of the aisle. • The return of the Republican party to its former stance of being merely a weak foil to the steamrolling agenda of the leftist ideology.

We have had a majority conservatives high court for many years and Roe is still with us. Conservative judges are only good for siding with corporations. Trump appointed the RINO swamp to his cabinet, so basically nothing will change on that front. Biden has already promised to appointed such people to his cabinet. The republican has always been fake and gay.

> • The pouring into the United States of hordes of illegal aliens, among them many criminals, making a mockery of our immigration laws.

Obama deported more immigrants than Trump and thanks to Covid, immigration is for the most part stalled out.

The bishop then expounds on the Enlightenment principles that the United States was founded on, and critiques them from a Catholic perspective. I agree with most of it, so I won't include any commentary. All in all, the bishop needs to stop watching Fox News, or maybe it's just a generational thing: hating the left passionately you lose all rational thinking.
